Bridgewater Church of the Brethren

Bridgewater, Virginia

B V S Statement of Purpose -- July 1948

- To serve human need – physical, economic, emotional, and spiritual.
- To serve the cause of peace by witnessing for “a way of life that takes away the occasion for all “war” and by giving youth a unique opportunity to grow together in the philosophy and the skills of peacemaking.
- To serve the church by deepening commitment, by developing skilled leaders, by encouraging life commitment to vocations of service to the church, by strengthening her peace testimony, by widening the horizons of the local church, by developing across the brotherhood a spirit of unity and destiny which comes to those who work together for common purposes, by giving pacifists the right to retain deferment from the draft and by setting a pattern which may be useful if CO’s are ever drafted.
- To serve the volunteer by giving him/her an opportunity to witness by example for the way of love and against the way of materialism and war, by giving constructive guidance as he/she chooses his/her vocation by helping him/her to grow, in a fellowship of likeminded youth to seek more earnestly through discussion and practice the real meaning of the Way of Jesus for his/her entire life.

A History of Brethren Volunteer Service

(adapted by Don Remnant from Living the Story, 50 Years of Brethren Volunteer Service, by James H. Lehman, 1998)

Colorado Springs, Colorado Annual Conference, June 15-20, 1948. CPS had recently been disbanded. Youth continued their interest in volunteer service with a motion to establish a volunteer program for young people. No opposition was recorded.

By July 1948, a volunteerism planning committee was established, developing a statement of purpose. Training was considered an important part of volunteering, with emphasis on serving human need and the cause of peace as well as on the development of church leadership and personal growth for the volunteers.

By September, the first training unit was ready to begin. Three months of training at New Windsor included half of each day sorting and bailing clothing for overseas relief, with the rest of the day spent in lectures, discussions, Bible study, worship and small group experiences – a pattern which would last for 20 years. Projects in the first ten years included community service, medical assistance, material aid, overseas relief and refugee work, and home missions.

In the fifties training was reduced to two months and a week of practice project was added in the middle.

In 1952, BVS was approved for alternative service placement, and during the Viet Nam era more than half of all volunteers were doing their alternative service through BVS. Many of these were from different denominations. In the sixties, there was an increase of projects at retirement homes, child care programs, and inner cities, as well as placements in the National Institutes of Health as research subjects. In 1968, BVS began accepting conscientious objectors from the Federal Republic of Germany. Training included volunteers going off the New Windsor campus to seek someone in the community to work for a day.

Projects in the seventies became more complex as the skills and experience of the volunteers increased. Projects of community organization, Native American projects, and expanded inner city work – projects that focused on social justice – became more common. Training units were no longer stationed at New Windsor, but became mobile units, moving in the BVS bus to different locations for each week of training. Training time was reduced to one month since volunteers no longer spent half of each day packing clothes, but this also meant that they would have to cook their own meals. Mobile units permitted more visibility in churches around the country and allowed for guest leaders from different locations.

Post-30 units were begun in 1973 and lasted for a few years.

From Discipleship units of 1975-76, a BVS Peace Team was begun, with four volunteers traveling to various Brethren summer camps. This has changed form but continues to the present.

In 1976, the first Brethren Revival Fellowship BVS unit was established with training and project supervision by BRF leaders.

Projects had more emphasis on community organization and social action. More overseas projects in Europe, Africa, Central America, and Southeast Asia opened up.

In the 1980s the median age of volunteers was higher, with more college educated volunteers. Issues of peace, justice, and the environment influenced project development. Shelters for battered women and children were also added to the project options.

By 1984, orientation was reduced to three weeks and training units ceased to be mobile, with the location varying from one unit to the next. The number of other- denomination and other-country volunteers increased.

Since the early 1980s, BVS has increasingly sent volunteers into trouble spots around the world – Northern Ireland, the Middle East, Bosnia, Central America – allowing volunteers to put into practice the Brethren ideas of nonviolence and peacemaking.

In the 1990s volunteers began doing hospice work in programs to help people with AIDS. As government welfare programs diminished, more help was needed in homeless shelters and soup kitchens.

In 50 years of BVS, 5,376 volunteers have been placed in projects around the globe. Relationships have been built across barriers of religion, race, language, and economic status. Equally, volunteers have been challenged to learn about themselves and to grow.

*As of January 2013, 65 years later, Unit Number 300 and over 7,000 volunteers have served in Brethren Volunteer Service.

Why Civilian Public Service?

By Clarence E. Quay

The Bible has a lot to say about the subject of "peace." One of the Ten Commandments is: "You shall not kill." At the birth of Jesus the angels sang, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is well pleased." In the Sermon on the mount, Jesus declared, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God." Saint Paul wrote, "Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts to which indeed you were called in the one body." (Col. 3:15)

In the 305-year life of the Church of the Brethren their only creed has been the New Testament. It is from the New Testament that the Church of the Brethren takes its position on peace. A theme that occurs frequently on the teaching of peace is: "War is totally contrary to the teachings and example of Jesus Christ."

During the American Revolutionary War, Brethren encountered much hostility and hardship because of their stand on peace. In 1778, Christopher Sauer, a Brethren printer in Germantown, Pennsylvania, was arrested, shamefully treated, and deprived of all his property. During the Civil War and World War I many church members were persecuted and property taken from them. Some were imprisoned and others left the State of Virginia in order that they may not be pressed into military service all because of their belief in the teachings of the Prince of Peace.

Prior to World War II representatives of the Church of the Brethren, Society of Friends, Mennonites and other peace groups met several times. Representatives of the three historic peace churches met frequently with government leaders to make their positions on peace known, and to "Urge that any legislation outlining conscription would include provision for people conscientiously opposed to any form of military duty." (Vol. 1, Brethren Encyclopedia, p. 316)

In September, 1940, the Selective Service Act provided that registrants for the draft who were conscientiously opposed to military duty "by reason of religious training and belief," should be assigned to "work of national importance under civilian direction." On February 6, 1941, an executive order by President Franklin D. Roosevelt authorized the director of the Selective Service System to establish the program that became known as Civilian Public Service. (CPS)

The Church of the Brethren had 14 base camps and many special projects. The men sent to these camps received no pay from the government. The church maintained the camps and provided the meals, while the "work of national importance" was directed by a project superintendent representing the cooperative government agency (U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Public Health Service, etc.)

The Brethren Encyclopedia reports (Vol. 1, page 316), "By Oct., 1945, the population of the Brethren units had reached almost 2,000 men, of whom 1,119 were Brethren from several different Brethren groups. The Church of the Brethren contributed more than $1,300,000, in addition to large amounts of food and clothing, for the operation and administration of Brethren units."

Why Civilian Public Service? The historic peace churches were aware of the hardships they may have to endure if conscription were enacted. They were aware of previous persecutions family and church members had suffered. They informed the government that many of those opposed to military duty would work at constructive projects that would be an alternative to military service. Civilian Public Service was the result of these discussions with the government.

The experience gained in the CPS program contributed to government and church planning for a different alternative service program in the 1950's and to the founding of Brethren Volunteer Service in 1948.

Alphabetical Listing of Participants

The following pages contain in alphabetical order Brethren Volunteer Service, Civilian Public Service, and Alternative Service alumni. The criteria used to determine who to include were first, that the person was officially in BVS, CPS, or Alternative Service and, second, that the person was at some time a member of the Bridgewater Church of the Brethren. The committee agreed it was time to update the records and to include all of the church family of the Bridgewater Church of the Brethren.

In the listings, Church of the Brethren is abbreviated by the letters “COB”. If BVS doubled as alternative service, the words ‘Alt. Service” appears in the listing. The item “Bridgewater COB” contains the years the person was a member of the church family.

Donna {Wills} Adams

Spouse: Gilbert

Bridgewater COB: Since 1993

Project: Catholic Worker House, San Antonio, TX

Description: The CWH is a homeless shelter providing transitional housing for four families with children in times of crisis. Week days at lunch it also provided a soup line for 50 – 100 people. I cooked, did housekeeping and maintenance repairs, served as a social worker, conflict mediator, authority figure, and friend to all who came through.

Lawrence Wright Miller

BVS Unit 114 – July 1975

Home Church: Bridgewater COB, VA

Bridgewater COB: 1964 – 1980

Project: Dundalk Youth Center, Baltimore, MD

Description: We were house parents for a group home of teen-age boys. These boys had been through the juvenile system and had been removed from their homes because of family dysfunction. We were responsible for the day to day care of the boys and were charged with making the project as much like a home as possible.

Madelyn Miller

BVS Unit 37 – December 1957 – December 1958

Home Church: Bridgewater COB, Bridgewater, VA

Bridgewater COB: Until 1960

Projects: NIH, Bethesda, MD, Modesto, CA

Description: Lived at National Institutes of Health (NIH), Bethesda, MD, on the Hemophilia wing as a blood donor for ongoing research. While at the Modesto project I was a playground attendant on a small playground in the migrant area in Modesto. My BVS experiences gave me a break in my college pursuits to serve in areas of need.

Myron S. Miller

Bridgewater COB: until ?

Projects: Forestry, Marienville, PA; Forestry, Waldport, OR; and Hopewell Farm, Williamsport, MD

Description: I began in the forest camps by planting trees, clearing roads, and occasionally fighting fires. I then moved into cooking. I helped close the camp at Marienville, then went to Hopewell farm where I served mainly as a cook, however I finished my service as director of the unit.

Andy Miracle

BVS Unit 262 – October 2004 – December 2005

Home Church: Bridgewater COB, Bridgewater, VA

Bridgewater COB: 1994 – 2009

Project: The Board's Brethren Witness/Wash Office, DC

Description: Working in the Brethren Witness/Washington Office, our efforts sought to represent the Church in DC as well as to keep the congregation informed of pertinent political issues. To facilitate these goals, I wrote and edited for newsletters and various outreach literature and participated with inter-religious working groups to manage policy strategy and lobbying efforts. Additionally, I facilitated workshops at district and national conferences and delivered presentations to congregational bodies.

D. Eugene Wampler

BVS Unit 28 – September 1955 – August 1957

Home Church: Bridgewater COB, Bridgewater, VA

Bridgewater COB: 1945 – 1946 and 1950 – 1960

Projects: Kassel Germany and Linz Austria

September – December 1955, New Windsor Service Center: training and service work. December 1955, Kassel Germany: orientation and assignment. January 1956 – June 1957, Linz Austria: office work (correspondence and financial management) and supervised material aid to refugees. June – August 1957, Kassel Germany: coordinated international work camp, material aid to refugees.

Description: The draft was part of a young man's life in the mid-1950's but one could obtain a deferment as a conscientious objector. While such a deferment was difficult to obtain in some parts of the country, it was routine for Brethren boys in Rockingham County. In addition, there was a student deferment as long as we were in college. But during my sophomore year at Bridgewater I decided to take two years in BVS as a time to clarify what I wanted to do with my life. BVS was a rich experience, giving me exposure to another culture, the satisfaction of doing something that was a real benefit to others and sharing new experiences with new friends. Because of the military draft, quite a number of young men volunteered which meant that quite a number of young women did as well. So there was a lively social atmosphere. Some of those friendships have lasted until today. BVS also helped me develop confidence that I could deal successfully with new problems and responsibilities.

Emily Wampler

BVS Unit 262 – September 2004 – September 2006

Amanda {Beckwith} Zepp

Spouse: Chris

Volunteered – BVS Project September 2002

Home Church: Lancaster COB, Lancaster, PA

Bridgewater COB: Since January 2007

Project: Gould Farm, Monterey, Massachusetts

Description: Gould Farm is the first residential therapeutic community in the nation dedicated to helping adults with mental illness move toward recovery, health, and greater independence through community living, meaningful work, and individual clinical care. In a supportive community environment made up of residents, staff, and families, the farm helps adults with mental illness begin to rebuild and regain their lives, and it remains rooted in the belief that a society is healthiest when its most vulnerable members are enabled to thrive.

I was on the residential team for the majority of my time on the farm. My role involved overnights in the guest houses to provide support and to distribute medications. During the daytime hours I helped in planning activities on the farm for both guest and staff and volunteers, transporting guests to and from appointments, participating in staff and volunteer and residential team meetings, and for the last several months I was responsible for the scheduling of our residential team. I also helped with child care for the staff during the first half of the year, for 1-2 days a week.
